This is a website about getting good employment. It's not a very straightforward article, but I'm sure you can get something out of it. The future of employment depends on your current activities. To be the best employee in the future, start by being a great employee today! You don't have to do anything to deserve being a good employee—be appreciative and respectful of what you have now, and keep up your hard work. With these qualities people will want to hire you long term. Any job or career in this day and age will either be transferred to a foreign country, destroyed by technology, or turned into a meaningless routine. Therefore, when choosing a career you need to consider whether it can still be around in ten years. To take care of yourself in the future, consider what you are passionate about. You are more likely to continue your career if you enjoy what you do and if you find it rewarding. When looking for an employer, or when looking for work keep your eyes on the long term financial benefits: good pay and good benefits. Your main objective should be security of income and working conditions that will not destroy your health and personal life. The evidence that your employer is giving you, if false, will be destroyed by technology. Therefore, the first thing to check before offering your services to an employer is what type of business they are in. Is it a business that can exist on their own? Are they out of touch with the trends on how people work nowadays? Are they improving their practices through technology? To find out about this, look at what other businesses are doing in the same field. Consider whether this seems strange if viewed from the perspective of how people work these days. Do they have good pay and benefits or do they pay low wages and give you few benefits? Look at the practices of the employees working there. Are they effective? Are they improving themselves using new technology? In any career, it is important to have a job that improves your chances of getting a good job in the future. The best way to get a promotion or a raise is to keep your boss happy. You can also use your boss's good will towards you as leverage to improve yourself—make sure you have something to give them.

Since, I'm not able to continue writing, here's an article on my blog (awaiting approval) that could be useful: The article is titled: What Every Student Should Know About Paying For College. It covers all the financial aid sources and how to pay for college. It's a long article but you'll get a lot of information from it. It also goes more on the theoretical side so I recommend reading this after you've been accepted to a school or have done your research related to paying for college . These are all the articles published on my blog: This website contains affiliate links, which means I receive commission if you click on the link and make a purchase. This does not cost anything extra to you, though! I'm not employed by any of the companies mentioned in these articles, nor am I affiliated with them. The views expressed in these articles are solely my own opinions.
