Signalling (telecommunication) Signalling Signalling SignallingDanielle McCormack, a model who was crowned Miss World Canada in 2006, has been missing since Sunday. McCormack, who was 23 when she competed at the Miss World pageant, was seen leaving her North York, Ont., home Sunday afternoon. She was last seen with a man, whom police described as her boyfriend, and her cellphone. Toronto police, who are investigating, told CP24 that there has been no evidence of foul play. She is described as five-foot-five with blue eyes and brown hair. McCormack works for a Toronto-based modelling agency and is believed to be between 22 and 26 years old. McCormack was a second-year student at York University's Osgoode Hall Law School when she was first elected Miss World Canada in 2006. She was crowned at the Crown Theatre in Ottawa in July 2006. She went on to represent Canada at the Miss World pageant in Johannesburg, South Africa, in 2007. in patients who develop delayed reactions to the wild-type strain. To address this issue, we performed a separate analysis of P. falciparum infections in RBCs from patients with malaria who developed either delayed or no reaction to the wild-type strain (Figure 4{ref-type="fig"}). Compared with patients who developed no reaction, patients who developed delayed-type hypersensitivity reactions had higher parasitemia (median = 32%; IQR, 18%--44%) than patients who developed no reaction (median = 18%; IQR, 10%--28%). These data are consistent with the notion that reactivity to the antigenically diverse PfRMP1a may provide a favorable outcome for the host. Our findings highlight the importance of testing reactivity to different malaria antigens in humans. Although we did not investigate the importance of PfRMP1a in humans, previous clinical studies support the notion that reactivity to this antigen may provide a favorable outcome for the host ([@bib9], [@bib10]). For example, our data show that high levels of PfRMP1a-specific T cells correlate with improved survival 2d92ce491b
