Hoefler & Frere-Jones.Q: Can't find the fstab line to add for booting up on another drive I have a hard drive that was not in my computer so I want to add it. I followed these instructions: But when I boot into ubuntu it doesn't boot up and says not found Here are my fstab line: /dev/sda2 / ext4 errors=remount-ro 0 1 I think I did everything right. What should I change to get it to work? A: The first two options are the partition to mount. You have /, but your drive is going to be /dev/sdb not /dev/sda2. You need to make the appropriate changes. The remainder of the line are configuration settings. Errors=remount-ro will cause the drive to remount read only when it is added to fstab. Other options are 0 and 1, I suggest you read man pages for more details. Also you should probably leave the defaults options, which would mean that you won't have to 2d92ce491b
