I have a list with events and need to update it from different threads. My first option was to create a new thread every time I want to add/remove an event or do a bulk update of the list, however, if the list has more than 50 items, it takes a lot of time. I did a quick test and using a set() method with a lock. I can see a slowdown in the 100-150 items but not with more. It seems to be a problem of thread scheduling. Do you have any suggestions on how to improve that? Thanks in advance, A: Depending on the size of the list, it may be possible to use CopyOnWriteArraySet (or CopyOnWriteArrayList) and have the events only be written to, read from, or added/removed from, this collection. Using Collections.synchronizedList(collection) should also work, and is generally safer than a ThreadLocal or CopyOnWriteArrayList. If you have several threads modifying the same collection, you can use Collections.synchronizedSet() to make sure that the operations only occur if the collection isn't empty.
