The toddler was attacked twice by the family pooch, and would often hide under her mother's bed. But it was getting worse – the toddler was becoming increasingly vulnerable. “She would look out the window and see the dog,” Jones told ABC7 News in Houston. “The first time she ever ran away, I was like, ‘This is a miracle.’” Jones said her daughter was getting more fearless as she grew up. But, by the time she was 2 years old, the toddler's confidence was starting to disappear. “She was running away from home and she didn't want my mom to look for her,” Jones told ABC7 News. Then, one morning, things took a tragic turn. Jones said her toddler was hiding under the bed when the family dog stepped on her and broke her leg. “I tried to get her out, and she looked at me and said, ‘No.’” Jones said. “She didn't say, ‘I don't want to leave.’ That's what she said.” But the 2-year-old was in too much pain to move. Jones said her daughter was bleeding out of her leg and wasn't able to escape. “She called out, ‘Mama,’ and I said, ‘I'm coming, I'm coming.’ I ran into the room and she said, ‘Mama, get me out of here.’” Jones told ABC7 News. “I said, ‘I'm coming.’ And she said, ‘No, please get me out of here.’” Jones said her daughter was gripping her leg with both hands and said she didn't want her mom to touch her.
