Objective: This tutorial will teach you how to edit an image using the features found in Photoshop Elements. Photoshop is a professional version of Photoshop and Photoshop Elements is an alternative to it. In this tutorial, I will be using the latest version of Adobe Photoshop Elements 16.01. I will be working in a Windows environment, but the steps I describe will work with other versions of Photoshop Elements, such as Photoshop Express, if you prefer a more intuitive user interface. If you don't have Photoshop Elements, you can find it online or download it here. If you need help, you can watch the video tutorial I created for you. Set Up Your Adobe Photoshop Elements Edit Before we start, we'll want to take care of a couple of minor things. First, we'll open Photoshop Elements 16.01 and press Ctrl + Shift + N on Windows and Command + Shift + N on macOS. This will give us an editor window. You'll notice that it's relatively empty. Go ahead and download the GIF you'll be editing. It's located here. I've stored it in my Desktop folder. When you download the file, you will download a folder named Mickey_Gif. I'm going to save the GIF inside the folder. You can copy the image if you like. Once you have downloaded the file, open it and click open. Navigate to your desktop and press Ctrl + V to paste the image into Photoshop Elements. Adjust Image Using Photoshop Elements As you can see, the editor has only three tabs: The previous image is displayed on the left side of the interface and the image itself is on the right side. When we click the Image tab, the interface will open as seen below: Let's start by opening the adjustment layer in the image editor. Open the Adjustment (Layer) > New Adjustment Layer window. The resulting window is seen below. When you click New Adjustment Layer, you'll see this window. You'll notice that the icon looks like a gear icon. If you click this icon, you'll get a menu where you can select from several types of adjustment layers. For now, click Simple. Next, we'll position the adjustment layer. Double- a681f4349c

Q: How to start emacs on windows and "find" text inside the buffer? When I get a new python file, I do C-x C-f, to navigate to the top of the file, then I run C-c C-v to find the "run" in the buffer. How can I do that from emacs in Windows? I mean do a "find" from the command line? A: You could use the following in a shell (cmd.exe for example): findstr /g:"run" "pythonfile" g is the global option, and it will search for runs of lines starting with "run" anywhere within the buffer. If you want only the first run, use f. If you are using emacs, you can get the buffer contents like this: findstr /n /c:"run" pythonfile or even like this, if you want to be more consistent: findstr /c:"run" pythonfile We have a couple of questions for anyone who can answer them: What are the most fun things to do or see in Dothan? What places would you suggest that a couple or couple-of-friends want to eat at? What is some important street you might want to drive down in the Dothan area? Chick-fil-A in the next county over has the best chicken sandwiches and has great employees. My in-laws go back there a lot when they are in the area. Thanks for your help. We are already planning our trip. Also: our ages are 34 and 40. We are not sure about the food in Dothan, but have never been before. We love food, but keep our diets in check. Dothan sounds awesome. I lived there for about four years for college and loved it. Not sure if we will try to save up enough to go back but you may be in for an adventure. I would recommend walking around and looking at the antique stores in downtown. Many of them have been abandoned and are in phenomenal condition but you will have to do it on your own. And if you have time I would highly recommend the local aquarium. I always enjoyed seeing all the different fish that live there. I think there are also some local nature preserves too. Hi sista, I live in Dothan and I

Hello guys! I have a problem, whenever I use the 'click and drag' of a hotspot, the gui of the hotspot would be blank (no background color) and I can not click or move it. The only way to enable clicking and dragging is to disable the hotspot, and reenable it by using the Enable/disable hotspot button in the bottom-right corner of the GUI. Look at this: In the video it says that your hotspots are too small to be selected with the mouse. The gimp documentation suggests that you move the hotspot to a bigger position. But that didn't help for me. The hotspot always remain blank. Please give me a hand or tell me how to sort out this problem, I've been searching for a while and couldn't find a solution.Q: Spring beans in a loop are not created (I don't see the logs) I've been looking for hours, trying to set up a Spring Boot application using reactive programming (JSF + WebFlux) and Spring Webflux. I'll be grateful for any kind of help. Trying to set up a bus, I went through many different examples and when writing my own code, I found out that Spring beans are not created. As a test, I tried to create a lot of loggers in my log4j.properties file with: loggers=org.springframework.cloud.bus.log.org.springframework.web.reactive.function.server.DefaultFunctionRegistrar logger.webflux.client.DefaultWebClientLogger=DEBUG logger.webflux.reactive.consumer.DefaultWebClientConsumerLogger=DEBUG logger.webflux.pipeline.DefaultWebClientConsumerLogger=DEBUG logger.webflux.reactive.consumer.DefaultWebClientReactiveConsumerLogger=DEBUG But the logs are never created! I created a test class that takes an infinite loop: public class LoopLogger { public static void main(String[] args) { do { //System.out.println(DateTime.now().format("HH:mm:ss")) + "
