San Marino Ancona is a village in the comune of Campolongo in the Province of Rimini, Emilia-Romagna region of Italy. History The settlement was established in the 4th century, during the Roman Empire. It was known as Quinto Ancona. Main sights The origin and the name derive from the church of St. Anclia, which was built in the 8th century, and contains a notable painting from the Master of San Martino (15th century). The church was rebuilt in Neoclassical style in 1733. The main attraction of the town is the church, thanks to which the town has an important reputation for the production of wine.
