In the cosmetology industry, professional spray/wax, foam, lotion and/or other cosmetic applicator users, among others, frequently utilize a pump sprayer assembly, such as a Gillette brand cartridge pump sprayer assembly (also referred to as a “pump sprayer assembly” or “pump sprayer”) in order to apply a spray or other cosmetic material to a user's face, hands, hair, fingernails and/or other locations on the user's body. As is known, a typical pump sprayer has a sprayer body, a trigger and an elongated opening or spout portion disposed at a distal end of the sprayer body. The elongated opening is also typically provided with a cover. The cover for the elongated opening helps prevent contact between the elongated opening and potentially harmful debris. Many conventional pump sprayer covers include a nozzle cap, a metal cap formed of, for example, steel or other metals and typically characterized by a cylindrical skirt and an openable nozzle portion at a distal end of the cylindrical skirt. The cylindrical skirt typically has a larger diameter than the sprayer body portion. Further, the cylindrical skirt surrounds the elongated opening. Several different types of sprayer assemblies exist. For example, sprayer assemblies having a nozzle cap or a metal cap positioned axially distal of the elongated opening are known. Additionally, sprayer assemblies are also known having a nozzle cap or a metal cap positioned axially proximal of the elongated opening. One common problem with conventional sprayer assemblies is related to the fact that the nozzle caps are generally formed of metal. In this regard, nozzle caps made of metal are often fitted into a through hole defined in the elongated opening. Metal nozzle caps are also often secured to the sprayer body by various mechanical fasteners such as screws. Unfortunately, metal nozzle caps generally must be positioned such that they do not interfere with the elongated opening. For example, in a typical pump sprayer assembly, the elongated opening will have an inner diameter of, for example, 0.23 inches and the metal nozzle cap will have an inner diameter of, for example, 0.18 inches. As a result, the metal nozzle cap will generally interfere with the elongated opening in conventional sprayer assemblies. Another problem with conventional sprayer assemblies is related to the fact that conventional nozzle caps generally require a two-step securing process in order to

What's New in the?

Last night we got some big news, as it seems UFC welterweight champ Robbie Lawler (16-5 MMA, 4-2 UFC) has signed a four-fight contract extension with the company. Lawler recently defeated Tyron Woodley at UFC 201 on July 8 to claim the title. The news was confirmed by UFC president Dana White on "On the Keys of the Kingdom," as well as Lawler's manager, Mike Roberts. "We heard about it last night and went to bed, very excited. We're going to get a rematch and we're going to get it on July 8." UFC president Dana White told Ariel Helwani on MMA Fighting's "The MMA Hour." Roberts said Lawler chose to extend the contract because he feels he has enough career left to challenge for another title. "We've been hearing a lot of rumors and we've been seeing a lot of stories. With this new contract, not only am I comfortable with him fighting for the title, I think he's comfortable with that, too," Roberts said. "He was thinking about doing this last week, once he stepped up and beat Tyron Woodley, and he's been thinking about it a lot. I think he's smart enough to know that he can get back into title contention. I think he wants to get back into title contention as fast as possible and he knows he has time to do it. With this new contract, he's already spoken with his management team about how he wants to do this. This is a big win for Robbie and it's a big win for his fans. I think he's just happy to be able to be with the company that he started with and has worked his whole career with and is going to stay with for at least a little while." White said Lawler will get his rematch with Woodley at UFC 205 in Madison Square Garden on Nov. 12. The UFC has also booked a championship doubleheader on the night. "That's how we do our business. We're going to get a rematch," White said. "You saw (UFC women's bantamweight champion) Amanda Nunes and (women's bantamweight champion) Raquel Pennington and we just had the women's title fight. When it comes to the big fights, we just have a lot of great matchups. I would think Woodley and Lawler is a great fight. We're going to make it happen, they're going to fight again in
