In addition, I like to make lavender soap and honeys. As for lavender tea, I brew a cup of tea, take a large handful of the dried lavender flowers, and drop them into the cup. When I do this, I never use any additional water; I just drop the lavender flowers into the cup. This is the best tea I have ever made and is very soothing. Ingredients Lavender (Lavandula angustifolia) Share this: Like this: Related I have been making Lavender tea since I first had the tea kettle in my kitchen. I love the aroma of the tea and how it helps my upper respiratory tract when I have a cold. I use the dried flower from the plants that I grew from seeds from Georgia Southern University. I just drop the flowers into the cup of tea and let them steep until it is ready to drink. I have also made Lavender Sachets and Lavender Soap. I am not a perfumer but I found that the soap smells so nice. I have used lavender from the Mother Earth store and Wildflower market in Connecticut. I live in Vermont. I have a great story for you. I am always looking for a substitute
