I have no idea where I came up with the idea for this mod so just trust me with the blind luck of having done it for the first time I'm the only person who has ever seen this mod. As this is my first mod I might use a simple preview feature. With the Steam Workshop Preview features you can see what the final mod looks like in-game before purchasing it. Unlike for the Android version this can be done without any limitations. When creating mods for the iOS version one has to be careful to avoid any downsides that can happen when creating a mod for iOS. The first step is to create a Game Generator for iOS app. While the documentation tells us that there are 13.3

million applications, it turns out that this number is specific to the kind of apps that we work with at the Game Generator for iOS. The actual number of applications in the Apple's app store which can be used for testing for the iOS version is much less than 13.3 million. If you have an app created at the Game Generator for iOS you can use a Apple's app store identifier to test it on the iOS version. If your app is not in Apple's app store yet you can create it with the Game Generator for iOS and get an Apple's app store identifier as a URL parameter. The second step is to create a game for iOS. This can be done with a demo version of the Game Generator for iOS. The game in iOS must start with at least 0.1. To make sure you don't create a fake mod you need to know the name of the Game Generator for iOS file, as mentioned below, and the official App Store name and description of your game. The third step is to create a game for iOS mod. In order to add a new mod to the game a plugin has to be created
