I know that there are plenty of applications out there for most computing platforms. But what about something that's tailor-made for a CEO of a successful technology company? I would have said executive time-management tools, but I'm going to go out on a limb and say that they are "Sore Loser's Guide to Time Management" These are designed to improve your ability to manage your time and it will inevitably improve your business results. Using Linux and Windows, plus some PHP and Visual Basic Scripts, I have crafted a personal journal that I manage and maintain online. It's done in HTML, which you can view as a page or print a PDF. It contains a schedule, writing calendar, agenda, and reminders (next appointment). It is not yet a great journal. I only have one account per login, which keeps my password space limited and I just have personal notes and reminders for the day, not much more. This is because there are a couple items that I haven't yet added, such as: * Subscriptions * Subscriptions are reminders that are sent to you to remind you of something that you have to do. E.g. Every morning, I need to send a reminder that I have a 2 hour meeting at 10 AM. * Subscriptions can also be something that happens on a particular day. E.g. I'm going to be out of town on the 22nd of April, so I'll set up a subscription to send a reminder that I have to pay my taxes on that day. * Reminders are notes that you can add to your agenda for the day, so if you have a reminder that you need to get lunch, you can add it to your agenda for the day.
