Ask HN: How do you like Java? - ddv What is your opinion on Java as a language? Is it a good choice, or is it too much of a pain? ===== KevBurnsJr I use Java professionally in the production of a large Web application and I love it. The syntax seems a little more verbose than other languages (e.g. Ruby) but the production support is amazing. Java has a few problems: Generics are an "incredible hack" if you ask me, but even then I agree with Anders Hejlsberg who says that it was a necessary evil [1]. There is a lackluster Matisse community [2] and huge class libraries [3]. JDBC has a bizarre architecture that allows you to do unsafe things [4], and the language has a great many gotchas. [1] [2] [3] [4] ~~~ ray_h A nit, but there is no "incredible" hack anymore. It's been in the compiler spec for a while now. ----- tectonic A good choice. I enjoyed using Java to develop applications and websites for years, until we started using Ruby on Rails. Currently I'm working with Node.js/Backbone.js for many of the same reasons I'm currently using Java. ----- winter_blue I don't
