Singapore's 32nd Parliament The 32nd Parliament of Singapore was a unicameral legislature in the Parliament of Singapore. It started on 7 January 2012. The 32nd Parliament was the first parliament to be dominated by a single party (the People's Action Party), having been led by Prime Minister Lee Hsien Loong until 2014. During the Parliament's last few months, several Prime Minister-led challenges were launched against the PAP's standing in Parliament. These included opposition leader Dr Chee Soon Juan's defamation lawsuit against the party for comments made by defending counsel Thio Kiang Oon, and CEC Savani Halappanavar's case where the PAP deliberately obstructed her right to keep her baby's body for post-mortem inspection. Both Prime Minister Lee Hsien Loong's sworn statements and defence counsel Thio Kiang Oon's attempts to explain the purpose of the statements were later used to mock Dr Chee's lawsuit. Prime Minister Lee Hsien Loong was Prime Minister of Singapore for the entire 32nd Parliament, but did not contest in the 2011 Elections, so he was appointed by President Tony Tan Keng Yam and T. T. Chee as Acting President at the opening of the 31st Parliament. As acting president, Lee served as head of the executive branch and chaired the opening of each session of Parliament in his capacity as Prime Minister and acting president. Lee Hsien Loong also chaired the opening of the 32nd Parliament.
