R2014 Autodesk Property List Format (.dpx) is a native file format for storing property lists used to display and edit drawing content. Property lists can be stored in the R2014 format (.dpx), or stored as AutoLISP, Visual LISP, or Visual Basic code (.asc or .lsp) AutoCAD Architecture The architectural feature is a technique used in AutoCAD's Architecture module to model building designs in which features are created to be assembled into larger, pre-fabricated elements (commonly referred to as "modules"). Notable architecture files

In addition to major buildings such as the Sydney Opera House, Empire State Building, and Pyramids of Giza, AutoCAD Architecture files can be used to create more moderate-scale structures such as a reconstruction of a 17th-century townhouse in the district of London called Haxby House. The Haxtons' House project, which contains the model and its accompanying documentation, is hosted on the Internet Archive. Despite the claims of the accompanying documentation, many of the underlying design files are still missing from the archive. In particular, there are numerous irregularities in the facade, as well as the missing window frames and the wrong door style.

Architectural drawings The Architectural Drawing feature in AutoCAD is available for architectural drawings, as well as for civil and mechanical drawings. Architectural drawings are a series of cross sections of a building that shows the various layers of materials that comprise the walls, floors, and ceilings. Civil 3D The Civil 3D feature in AutoCAD is used to create blueprints for the construction of buildings, landfills, and other infrastructure projects. Civil 3D models can be exported to other CAD software for further customization.

Electrical 3D The Electrical 3D feature in AutoCAD is used to design electrical wiring diagrams, circuits, and power systems for commercial and residential buildings. The utility coordinates feature can be used to automatically determine the distance from one point to another, and the utility right-click menu in the electrical tab allows for selection of the specific type of coordinate system required.

The right-click menu also allows for selection of points that must be snapped to the coordinate axes, and the points can be displayed on a layout panel. Mechanical 3D The Mechanical 3D feature in AutoCAD allows for the creation of 3D will like at the end of this trip. Overall, this is a great vacation. I have been on a few motorcycle trips before and have not seen many hotels with a similar product. And to add to that the location is perfect. The only thing I would change is I would like the room to have more of a tv in the room. It is not great to have to walk down stairs to get to the tv. But overall I am very satisfied with the product. One of the reason I wanted to take the trip, was to see what this motorcycle vacation experience is like. I have been on some motorcycle trips before but this was the first time I traveled with a good sized group of people. As I mentioned, there was eight of us in the group, with a mix of single riders, couples, and a family group. This trip was great! The organization of the trip was excellent, and the end of the trip was excellent also. The only thing I would have changed about this trip would be to have an extra day in the day as we traveled from Palmyra, to Burbank, to Redding. We did not make it into Redding, as the weather was bad. The first night was in Palmyra and that was fine but the next night we would have preferred to have stayed another day in Burbank. I would recommend this vacation to anyone. I have never done anything like this before, and I was very impressed with the planning and organization. It made for a very smooth trip, and a great end to a great vacation! I did this trip in March 2017. It was a trip with a group of about 10 people. We stayed at the Palm Valley Inn in Palm Springs. (Review of hotel on my other blog, Roadtripper). We started the trip in Palm Springs, and rode west on the first day. We ended the trip in Redding, CA. I would say that is the perfect location for this trip. It is close to a lot of very nice areas, but far enough away to make it feel like you are going into the desert. I am not sure that any of the other locations would have been as good as Redding for this trip. Redding also had an AAA Discount. We stayed at the Palm Valley Inn in Palm Springs. I think this would be a good place to stay for most people. The prices seem to be reasonable, and the room was very comfortable. It is a bit off
