CAR2003 CD300Â .Q: Selection of any set of super number of words by minimum number of words I have 8 character words

$W$  of length  $m$ , in a sentence  $SS$  of length  $n$ , The words  $W$  of  $W$  appear at random in  $SS$  with some probability  $p_w$ . This is like a  $n$  length random selection of words  $SS$  from  $W$  into a sentence  $SS$  where  $w$  appears with probability  $p_w$  in  $SS$ . Can this technique be used to find out which set of minimum size of words  $W$  can be selected so that almost any word  $w$  in  $W$  appears in  $SS$  with probability  $0.95$ ? I believe if I can get any  $m$  words from  $W$  there exists a word  $w$  in  $W$  that appears with probability  $0.95$  in  $SS$  so if  $m \geq \log N$  and  $n \geq m$  A: Certainly not.

You need at least  $m$  distinct words in order to span  $W$ . Suppose  $w_1, \dots, w_m$  are distinct words with probability  $p_1, \dots, p_m$ . By the law of large numbers, there must exist a choice of  $w_1, \dots, w_m$  such that  $p_1 + \dots + p_m = 0.95$  (since if  $p_1 + \dots + p_m < 0.95$ )
