A highly pathogenic mutant of poliovirus may have occurred in Oman since at least the 1990s. It is similar to existing wild type 2 poliovirus (WPV) strain and is a major threat to an immunisation programme for children. No natural case has been identified but there are hypothetical explanations as to the source of infection. Data were collected from the National Polio Surveillance System (NSS) from January 2008 to January 2012. The total number of cases was 409. The majority of cases were in rural communities (72%), under 10 years old (64%), in the Gulf region (34%), and in the Dhahirah and Bat area (10.2%). Only four children who had been in contact with environment were identified (1.2%). The attack rate in the epidemiological week 48 was 1.0%. Sequencing of isolates revealed that some were similar to wild type and others matched to vaccine used in the affected area.Q: WKWebView not working on simulator I am trying to use WKWebView, I've set all the search domains, etc and I don't get an error, but in the simulator I can't see any URLs (viewing a website works) and in the view controller I can't even see the URL (XCode gives me this message when I click on the URL property of the View Controller): 'NSURL' does not have a member named 'URL' Is there something I'm doing wrong? A: You have to add the Keychain Access entitlement, and also the internet permission, to your application. Once you've done that, your app will start in the "sandbox mode". Meaning, the only domain you'll be able to access is localhost. So in the Simulator, only apps in sandbox mode can access the URL, because it will load the webpage inside the sandboxed application. If you want to load websites that aren't from localhost, you'll have to go on a Mac with Safari, open the webpage on the iPhone, and then share it via AirDrop (or whatever is the method of choice on your Apple device). Hope it helps! Path-integ
