Conventional finishes are for stuff that gets lots of food thrown at it, while this type is tougher for food to cling to. It also dries to a much more matte finish. A good sealer is the best way to go for this finish, and you can finish your base coat right after you've applied the sealer. I prefer to apply mine with a spray gun, but some people like to brush it on. Is a good idea to apply any finishing process after you've applied your sealer? Yes, this will help the sealer get better coverage on your finish. What's the best way to apply sealers? You could apply a matte finish with spray, brush or sand the finish. Try to keep your face out of the sun when applying a sealer. I prefer a sprayer, even if you do need to brush it in. I usually apply my sealer the same way I apply my primer coat.
