Cuz I'm cooking up a storm Menu Post navigation Swimming lessons Since the moment I saw my kids with their swimming lessons blaring through the house I have been obsessed. I am not a good swimmer and I do not have the patience to learn. So I am only going to teach myself. Doing the month long course with Wyvern who is one year old seems to be a little daunting and a really interesting experience. Apparently swimming is a lot of fun. It is basic movement. I love how the Wyvern has taken to it. It is something I can add to my arsenal when I want to get into the great outdoors. I think it's awesome that my kids are learning from a very early age. My own Swimming that I picked up at 6 months old and I was actually quite good at it. I love swimming! ? And for the record, I am hoping to get my hips fitter so I can do a pee or 2 in the pool too., on initially fleeing the area. To satisfy Accreditation Council for Graduate Medical Education requirements (ACGME), residents are required to demonstrate competence in core competencies. These core competencies were defined at the time of the Organizing Committee of Joint Commission on Accreditation of Medical Education (JCAHO) in 1988. They cover the broad domains of professionalism, interpersonal and communication skills, medical knowledge, practice-based learning and improvement and systems-based practice. Since their implementation, numerous studies have documented an improvement in the core competencies' scores at individual resident level as well as satisfaction. In all five competencies, the curriculum from 2012-2014 is structured in three parts. The first part is a longitudinal didactic sessions aimed at providing theoretical knowledge in each of the competencies. The second part is competency-based practice, followed by evaluation of residents' performance of the competencies using a comprehensive checklist. This checklist, which is uniformly and separately administered to all residents at each of their monthly briefings, consists of three components: a) objective structured clinical examination (OSCE), b) minimum criteria for milestones (MCM) and c) clinical performance assessment in the form of a global rating scale on a 5-point scale (Table 1{ref-type="table"}). Residents are requested to demonstrate their knowledge, skills and attitudes regarding patient care by completing these tasks. Training manuals and clinical scenarios are provided to the residents. The training during the first year covers four competencies, the second year five competencies, the third year six competencies and the fourth year eight competencies. Residents receive feedback based on the data collected during the didactic sessions, competency-based tasks, OSCE, MCM and global rating scale components. Regular monthly review and a community education forum are conducted to build up self-assurance in residents and to provide them with an opportunity to self-improve.
