Using Stabacad, electrical and mechanical project teams can seamlessly work together in streamlined M&E workflows, using the common design platform Revit. This means electrical designers no longer have to deal with broken workflows and rework, clashes and last-minute manual cable rerouting and containment resizing. Stabacad will solve the problem of having to work with several software tools from various vendors simultaneously that are not cross-compatible. Stabacad enables electrical and mechanical design teams to work seamlessly together to meet engineering challenges. This makes cable configuration easier and more error-free and helps communicate and collaborate throughout all phases of a project. Stabacad 7 introduces a new data model. All information about a material is now kept centrally in the database. This makes it possible to change properties like colour or material name for a huge number of materials at once.
